From the Pastor's Desk...

Today is the Third Sunday of Lent. The theme of water flows throughout the scriptures and if you have ever visited the Holy Land with its barren landscape, few trees and few rivers you know how precious this commodity is. In our first reading this reality confronts the Hebrews fleeing Egypt. Burning thirst leads them to protest against Moses, and indirectly against God. Desperate for water, they seem to prefer slavery in Egypt to their present plight. In the previous chapter they had grumbled about a lack of food and God provided manna. Now they seem to have quickly forgotten God's faithful care. God commands Moses to strike the rock of Mount Horeb and water gushes forth. The end of today's story underscores that God chooses Israel out of freely-given divine love, not because of the people's merit. The names Massah and Meribah mean "the place of testing" and "the place of quarreling." As Israel's journey with God continues through the centuries, they will continually test his patience; but the Lord never ceases to offer life-giving waters of grace.

In the Letter to the Romans, written near the end of Paul's life, he presents his most developed thought on the meaning of the Good News of Christ. Paul had been a faithful Jew and now he is the Apostle to the Gentiles. He emphasizes that divine grace, not because of any human accomplishment, is what justifies us with God. For Paul, faith involves accepting God's gift precisely as a gift, surrendering all thought of justifying oneself by human effort.

Our gospel today comes from John, written 40 years after Matthew wrote. It's clear that water is going to be central. Jesus' request for a drink breaches social and religious custom. In response she addresses Jesus as "a Jew." Next she addresses him as "sir," and finally as "Lord." Her growing insight indicates her growing understanding of him. Jesus tells her that the temple is not where God lives, but in the person of Jesus. As the disciples return, the woman recognizes

Jesus as Messiah, but the disciples call him nothing more than Rabbi. John is indicating that faith in Jesus grows in levels of understanding and commitment.

Bishop David O'Connell of the Diocese of Trenton, NJ recently issued a pastoral letter outlining a complete reconfiguration of the 107 parishes in the diocese. He noted in the letter that, with a Catholic population of 774,000 Catholics, only 18% are attending Mass on a regular basis and only 42% of the population support the church financially.

Saint Patrick's Parish was established in 1837, making it the oldest parish in the city of Erie and 180 years old this year. The first church was a small wooden building on the east side of German St. between Third and Fourth Streets. The second church was a brick building located approximately where the rectory now stands. It was built in 1849 and used until the present church was built in 1906. It was demolished in 1912 to make way for construction of the rectory. That second church also served as the cathedral of the Diocese of Erie from 1852 when the diocese was established until the present St. Peter's Cathedral was completed in 1892.

With today's interest in genealogy, people are constantly contacting us as they search for baptism, marriage, death records of their Irish ancestors. Almost every Irish immigrant in Erie would have lived here in the First Ward and been a member of St. Patrick's Parish. If you are searching for any records of an ancestor there is a form on our webpage which you can complete and we can then search to see if there are any records here.

In those early days almost every Catholic parish was ethnic. The Irish belonged to St. Patrick's, the German's to St. Mary's and later St. Joseph's. There was a large Portuguese immigrant population in Erie and they belonged to St. Andrew's. While many of the Irish worked on the ships on Lake Erie, the Portuguese were the builders of the ships. As immigrants blended more and more into the general population, they migrated away from those ethnic parishes, some people to the suburbs, others to no practice of the faith at all.

We're seeing some of the same phenomenon happening today with Latino and Hispanic Catholics. When they first migrate to America, they all worship together, but with each generation blending more into the general population, they migrate away from those churches; and many of the young migrate to no worship.

We also have at the rectory all of the large books which list all of the burials in both Trinity and Calvary Cemetery from the day each were opened until 2010. Many times the tombstones reveal information that families are searching for.

If anyone is searching for ancestral roots in Ireland itself, you can go online and find a great deal of information. The sacramental records of the Irish churches are all online and can be easily accessed. Because many of those baptisms, marriages and deaths were only recorded in the church registers, this is often the only way people can trace ancestors. Because of the deep poverty and the prejudice by British landowners and politicians, much of that data was never recorded civilly.

Congratulations to John Bauman who is confirmed today by Bishop Persico. John completed his preparation in the Eastside Religious Ed program, did his service hours last fall at the Irish Festival, met with me to discuss his growth in faith and was confirmed in a ceremony at St. Luke's for all of the eastside students. A large number of our other students are being confirmed this spring, but they have been taking their classes at other parishes and will be confirmed with those students.

Three men were hiking through a forest when they came upon a large, raging river. Needing to get to the other side, the first man prayed, "God, please give me the strength to cross the river." Poof. God gave him big arms and strong legs and he swam across in about two hours. The second man prayed, "God, give me the strength and tools to cross the river." God gave him a rowboat and after an hour, he made it to the other side. The third man prayed, "God, give me the strength, the tools and the intelligence to cross the river." Poof, he was turned into a woman. She looked at the map and hiked a hundred feet up stream and walked across the bridge.

Lent Resources for Individuals and Families

The Office of Parish Social Ministry and Respect Life is offering resources for individuals for the Lenten season. These resources include weekly Scripture for reflection, service project suggestions and additional resources for assisting families in preparing for Easter. This is a great opportunity for families to find ways to devote time to scripture and service together. Access these resources at <http://www.eriescd.org/justice.htm>.

180 DAYS TO THE 2017 ERIE IRISH FESTIVAL

WANTED:
VENDOR RELATIONS CHAIRPERSON

The Festival chairperson in charge of vendor relations solicits all those folks who sell all of that great Irish stuff—jewelry, tee shirts, flags, clothing, etc.—gets them settled in at the Vendor Village tent, and makes sure that both they and we have a great festival. Sadly, our fantastic Vendor Relations Chairperson, Roselle Walkiewicz, has taken her many talents south to sunny Florida. We will miss her enormously, but our loss is your gain, because this opens up a coveted seat on the Festival Committee—a chance for you to step up and do a big job.

The successful candidate will be an understudy to Roselle this year and assume command of the vendors for the 2018 festival. Here’s the job in a nutshell:

- Recruit a Good Mix of Vendors: Contact return and potential vendors in January, send registration packets and oversee payment (with the help of our unsung heroine in the rectory, Janine Carch Sliker). Make sure we don’t end up with 6 Irish flag vendors and no clothing.
- Organize Vendor Placement and Set Up: Map out the vendor area with the festival chairs and physical set-up folks and insure that the vendors have what they need and have ordered in the way of equipment and supplies—tables, chairs, electricity.
- Be the Festival Liaison with the Vendors: You’ll need to be on site most of the weekend to check the vendors in and make sure it’s all running smoothly for the vendors and for the festival and to solve any disputes or problems.
- Debrief with Each Vendor: After the festival, check with the vendors—what was their level of satisfaction and their interest in returning? Then, report to the committee as a whole on recommendations for next year.

The successful candidate for this position should be outgoing, very organized, think outside the box, and be able to problem solve on the go. Experience with retail sales might be a plus, but a love of shopping is a real plus as well.

An email outlining your sterling qualifications (e.g. I’m living and breathing and willing to help!) and interest in discussing the job further should be sent to either Gary or Becky Johnson, Festival Chairs. Nothing is binding, so if you are even a little bit interested, let us know. We’re not above bribery.

Waiting for your email, contact us, Gary and Becky Johnson, Festival Chairs, at gjohnson@brotolocsouth.com or beckykj@neo.rr.com.

Child Protection and Creating Safe Environments
Online Safety Tips for Parents & Kids:

Chat rooms can be a treacherous place and parents need to talk to their children about potential dangers. Children “meet” new friends virtually but in the virtual world you never really know who you are talking to. Sometimes these new “friends” are adults trying to gain the friendship and trust of children and youth. Continual monitoring of children’s participation in chat rooms is required to keep children safe!
